About the artist

Andrea Brown is a contemporary South African artist who started her career by working in ceramics. Surgery to her hands in 2020 forced Ms. Brown to find other channels of expressing her artistic talent. Not able to work with ceramics any more, Andrea decided to start painting.

This artist works mainly in acrylics because the medium lends itself to a variety of techniques that cannot necessarily be achieved using only oils or water colours.

Ms. Brown's paintings can be described as Intuitive Expressionism. She prefers bold complementary colours and leaves it to the viewer to interact with her works.

Painting intuitively, means that Andrea relies on the Alpha waves generated by the brain to guide her hand over the ground. She does not over-analyse her work because such an action would risk her work to lose a unique freshness.
